

Traders On The Reek

Traders would go up the reek every Sunday to sell sandwiches, soup, Tayto bags, coffee and tea.

They would bring the donkeys up the reek to carry the goods.

The tents would be made out of wooden planks and sheets.

It would be very cold up there at night.

They would be frozen by the time they came down from the top.

They would get up early in the morning to go up the reek.
